Residents at odds with betting giant's plans to take over site of independent record
store

LET'S BEAT THE BOOKIES

ADAM HOLT

By Lucy Purdy

HUNDREDS of angry residents joined a mass rally at the weekend to protest at plans to open yet another betting shop in "saturated" Tottenham.

A crowd gathered outside Every Bodies Music shop in High Road on Saturday to warn that an application by Paddy Power to open a betting shop there would "prey on the poor" and ruin the character of the area.

The Irish betting giant announced plans to appeal after its application to open a shop on the site of the well-loved independent record shop was rejected by Haringey Council earlier this year. Residents say it is unbelievable that yet more gambling shops are being considered even though there are already 39 bookmakers in Tottenham and more than 70 scattered around the borough. They point out the symbolism that while there is a high density of places to gamble in Tottenham, there are no bookshops.

Douglas Williams, who lives in nearby Abbotsford Avenue, helped organise the rally and has already gathered more than 400 signatures in support of the group which has been dubbed Find Your Voice Pressure Group.

Mr Williams said: "It seems to me that they put these betting shops in poor areas such as Tottenham to make money out of the ignorance of poor people. You don't see many in places like Hampstead and Highgate do you?"

"We believe they cause division, family breakdowns, people peddling drugs and loafing around - this is what we have seen in the communities where we already have them.

"We called a meeting of people concerned about this and decided we had to do something."

Every Bodies Music has been a feature of High Road for more than 30 years and is a one-stop shop for music lovers, particularly fans of reggae. But there are fears the owner will be priced out when the lease expires.

Cameraman Anthony Ogunmuyiwa, 31, also went along on Saturday. He told the Advertiser: "I've grown up in this area and go to the store quite often to keep up with the latest music trends because they sell all sorts of stuff from America and the West Indies. It is part of the community in Tottenham.

"This is quite a poor area so to have a gambling shop there for people who hardly have any money to go and gamble it away is crazy."

London mayoral candidate Ken Livingstone is spearheading a campaign for councils and Londoners to tackle the proliferation of betting shops in the capital after revealing there were 2,095 gambling licences in operation in London in 2009 compared to 1,721 in 2003.

He said: "The huge increase in the number of betting shops has changed the character of high streets all across London and I believe it is time for Londoners and local authorities to be given greater powers to ensure our high streets do not become completely dominated by gambling establishments."

'It is about time the odds were shifted to the side of residents'

Organiser: Resident Douglas Williams has gathered 400 signatures against the plan

□ From front page

Mr Livingstone added: "There should be a separate planning class for betting shops to give councils and residents power to determine their location and overall numbers. This is not an attack on gambling.

"We want a decent balance of shops in our high streets. It is about time the odds were shifted in favour of betting shops to the side of residents."

Current planning laws categorise betting shops in the same class as banks, building societies and other professional services. Two banks in Green Lanes have been replaced by betting shops in the past two years. And councils are told to approve gambling licences unless they can prove that a shop will impact upon the vulnerable or generate anti-social behaviour - which is difficult to prove about a shop which has yet to take its first bet.

But Paddy Power spokesman Darren Haines argued there are many "myths" around the subject and said gambling shops had simply moved from the "dingy back streets" on to the high street in recent years.

He said: "It is quite a strain to say a regulated betting shop is going to cause all sorts of crime and ills in an area.

"We work responsibly to ensure problem gambling and other things are looked after. I would have thought it is better to have a shop with employment and job creation rather than to have an empty shop in the high street."

Rajul overcomes deafness to earn top university place

By Lucy Purdy

A STUDENT from a specialist deaf school in Haringey has won a place at one of the world's top universities after achieving outstanding exam results.

Eighteen-year-old Rajul Alam says he was ecstatic to open his results and find an A* in ICT, an A in applied ICT and a B in mathematics. He is now looking forward to beginning a degree at University College London, which last week was declared one of the world's top five universities.

Rajul has been deaf all his life and says it has made learning more difficult, but he received a lot of help from Blanche Nevile School For Deaf Children, located on the same campus as Fortismere Secondary School in Burlington Road, Muswell Hill.

Rajul told the Advertiser: "On results day I was so nervous when I approached staff to get them because I thought I wasn't going to get the AAB grades in order to study information management for business at UCL. But then the staff congratulated me, which is when I turned from nervous to ecstatic!"

"It was the happiest day of my life and I smiled all the time."

"Due to my deafness I found it difficult to learn in class because I missed important information which could affect my grades. But I got a lot of support from the school which boosted my confidence and ability to study harder. It took a lot of commitment to get top grades and I regularly attended school workshops and stayed at school to finish coursework and revise in the evenings."

Rajul, who lives in Curthwaite Gardens, Enfield, hopes his success will inspire other disabled students to do well and plans to forge a career in investment banking or accounting.

Veronica Held, acting headteacher at Blanche Nevile, said she was "delighted" by his success. "Rajul has overcome some of the many difficulties and challenges facing deaf and hearing-impaired people and has achieved outstanding examination results in his GCSEs and A-levels," she said.

Health chiefs face quiz on Whittington

RESIDENTS will get the chance to interrogate health chiefs on the future of The Whittington Hospital during a meeting in Archway tomorrow.

Stephen Conroy, director of communications at North London Central NHS, will face questions about the future of the hospital in Highgate Hill after its future was plunged into uncertainty last year.

Shirley Franklin, chairwoman of the Defend The Whittington Hospital Coalition, said: "In April of this year the people of Haringey and Islington were promised that their local A&E and services at The Whittington were safe."

"However, the recently published White Paper reforms and North Central London 'stocktaking' document have given Defend The Whittington Coalition genuine concerns about the future of hospital services."

The meeting will take place at Archway Methodist Hall in Archway Close at 7.30pm.

Gunman's guilty plea after firing weapon at passers-by

A MAN has admitted pointing and shooting a handgun at terrified crowds in a busy street in Wood Green earlier this year.

Aron Thomas, 23, pleaded guilty to possessing a firearm and GBH with intent after firing the gun into crowds of people near Wood Green Tube station on February 28. The Old Bailey heard how Thomas drove to Bullers Road, near bustling pubs and bars in the centre of Wood Green, and pulled out the gun. He then fired shots toward members of the public, hitting one man in the leg.

The 20-year-old victim was treated at The Whittington Hospital, in nearby Archway, where surgeons painstakingly worked to remove the bullet lodged in his lower right leg. Thomas fled the scene before police arrived but, following the local searches, was traced to his home in Bramall

Indiscriminate: Thomas hit a man in the leg after he fired shots into a crowd

Court, George's Road, in Holloway, and arrested. Detective Inspector Sally Jeffrey, of Operation Trident, which investigates violence within London's black community, spoke after the hearing on September 8.

She said: "The young victim had been enjoying a night out with friends when he realised someone was firing indiscriminately at members of the public. After hearing the third shot he began to run but was shot in the leg from behind.

"Due to the substantial evidence gathered by Trident officers Aron Thomas had no choice but to plead guilty at the Old Bailey."

Thomas will be sentenced on October 6 at the Old Bailey.

Café offers bazaar way to search for unusual bargains

VINTAGE treasure-hunters packed into a café which had been transformed into a colourful bazaar at the first "Barboot sale" in Crouch End. Shoppers supped cocktails from vintage teacups and browsed stalls piled high with vintage clothing, jewellery, antiques and more at The Haberdashery on September 1.

Organisers are now planning Barboots for every first Friday in the month after a storming success at the inaugural event. Up to 400 people turned up to the café in Middle Lane hoping to snare a bargain after the sale was advertised on Facebook.

Café co-owner Massimo Bergamin said: "It was absolutely crazy. It went way beyond our expectations. I have a passion for car boots and, before I opened the café, my favourite pastime at weekends was to wake up early and go to car boots. So when I opened the café I started wondering how I could combine my two passions."

"We had 19 sellers who were all local – most of them are customers in fact – and cocktails and candles as well as live music in the style of Frank Sinatra and Nat King Cole."

Massimo took over the café in November last year and runs it with his business partner Greg Vukasovic. All stallholder slots for the next sale on October 1 have already been filled and half for the following sale on November 5.

Massimo and Greg are currently trying to find a larger venue in Crouch End to host the

Taste of success: Greg Vukasovic, Katie Duerdoth and Massimo Bergamin

December Barboot which they predict will be even busier with Christmas shoppers.

Shoesmith to give advice to MPs on child protection

Controversial:
Sharon
Shoesmith

THE former head of children's services in Haringey, who was sacked in the wake of Baby Peter's tragic death, is to give evidence to a parliamentary committee on child protection issues.

Sharon Shoesmith will appear before the education select committee today as one of a number of witnesses looking at the latest issues in the safeguarding of children.

She was sacked from her position at Haringey Council following the death of 17-month-old Peter Connelly, who died after enduring months of abuse at the hands of his mother Tracey Connelly, her partner Steven Barker and his brother Jason Owen, despite being on Haringey's child protection register.

Health and social service professionals working under Ms Shoesmith's command failed to spot the warning signs, despite more than 60 opportunities before his death.

Baby Peter was tortured and used as a punch-bag in the eight months before he died in his blood-stained cot in a house in Penshurst Road, Tottenham. He had suffered more than 50 injuries, including a broken spine, eight broken ribs and missing fingernails.

There was outrage following coverage of the toddler's horrific death in the national and international media and Ms Shoesmith was sacked without compensation, despite initial support by then council leader George Meehan and chief executive Ita O'Donovan.

New display shows how Bounds Green survived the Blitz

By Lucy Purdy

A DEVASTATING bomb attack which killed 19 people in Bounds Green during the Blitz 70 years ago has been commemorated in a new wartime exhibition.

An exhibition at London Transport Museum, called Under Attack – London, Coventry And Dresden, tells the story of how the station was damaged and two houses above the station tunnel demolished during an attack in 1940.

David Bownes, head curator at the museum, said: "The incident at Bounds Green was the result of a bomb dropped from an aircraft flying out of formation which demolished two houses above the station tunnel.

"The resulting collapse of these buildings brought down the tunnel at the northern end of the platform, killing 16 instantly. The damage was so extensive that the station was closed for two months after the attack."

One photo shows a huge pile of rubble lining the crater left by a bomb which exploded on the west-bound platform on the night of October 13, 1940.

Many of the casualties were Belgian refugees. Another shows air raid damage on the same night, with plaster work on the walls and roof becoming dislodged and destroyed.

Many Londoners used Underground stations to shelter from the bombing with London Transport even running a catering service distributing tea and snacks. While the government promoted images of cheery cockneys resolute in the face of adversity, the reality was that sheltering on the Tube was uncomfortable, unhygienic and unpleasant.

The show runs until March 31 next year. Visit www.ltmuseum.co.uk to find out more.

Secret Cinema adds a frisson of mystery and fancy dress to a movie night out. JONATHAN LOVETT gets swept up by drama at Ally Pally ENGLISH dog," I found myself hissing at a drunk British officer dancing a little too provocatively with a pretty belly-dancer.

"Arab pig," he barked back, before superciliously sneering and turning round to the object of his affections who had wisely slipped away into the souk's buzzing throng.

Amazing what a little fancy dress does to people.

A couple of Sundays ago I found myself transformed into an Arab alighting at Alexandra Palace train station with dozens of other headscarfed, flowing-gowned individuals looking for a little excitement to add to our usually humdrum weekends.

All we had been told was to meet at 4pm at the venue as part of the latest experience offered by Secret Cinema. For those not in the know, this less-than-secret enterprise has been billed the ultimate in cinematic adventures, comprising hours of themed entertainment prior to a screening of the mystery film.

Clever marketing has ensured that

Arabian flights of fancy light up Ally Pally

from humble beginnings this has now grown to be a major monthly event attracting hundreds and hundreds of people who are only alerted to the venue and choice of attire a few days before the event.

"Come dressed as an Arab," I was told, ensuring I was thrown into a nervous mess that the film was one of the greatest turkeys of all time, the Abu Dhabi-set Sex In The City 2!

"Don't worry. It'll probably be Lawrence Of Arabia," said my far more sensible friend, Cym, as she adjusted her head-scarf and checked the best way to avoid large groups of non-fancy dressed people on our journey to the palace. The perfect venue for a little overblown revelry replete with enormous indoor palm trees, our local palace certainly seems to be figuring more prominently on the more interesting arts map lately, experimenting with drive-in movies, inviting the trendiest bands along for concerts and now becoming a part of the "revolution" of film.

Our first encounter on leaving the train station were a couple of friendly Arabs who admired my sword purchased from a 99p thrift shop (curved like a scimitar but more pirate than Arab) and directed us up the hill to a virtual desert zoo of camels, goats and sheep and an unfriendly Arab horse rider who took less kindly to my sword-brandishing and chased us up the hill to the palace itself.

ONCE inside we walked through a wonderfully atmospheric long room of officers dressed in Edwardian uniforms typing away at period desks (our first big clue that we would definitely not be frolicking with Carrie Bradshaw and to illuminate its projects would pop up at various points to add some good local flavour and more clues about the film in store... where had I heard talk of the Harif tribe before, is that an English journalist floundering in the desert and why is that white caucasian dressed like us...? Hmm...

With plenty to look at the only thing SC lacks is edge. Perhaps when it first started there was something a little outré about a few people travelling to an unknown location to watch a cool movie but now it does seem a victim of its own success, as shown in the terrific number of people attending, high ticket prices (£27.50 at full whack) and the sheer scale of it which inevitably has to cater for the less interesting majority rather than the minority.

Nevertheless, there is still something rather wonderful about a couple of thousand people settling down in the dark in the middle of a palace dressed as Arabs to watch a classic film. And, as that instantly recognisable overture washed over us and Peter O'Toole shot into view on his motorbike, I couldn't think of many better ways to spend a Sunday evening in the city.

ATTENTION LANDLORDS!

BTC LETTINGS WILL MANAGE ALL YOUR PROPERTY HEADACHES FOR ONLY 5%

Wouldn't it be great if the only thing you had to do with letting your property was enjoy your monthly income?

BTC Lettings market reviews:

- ★ With not many property owners wanting to sell in this market, there is an overspill of properties to let, here at BTC we have over 200 properties to let
  - ★ We are letting 1-3 properties a day - up to 50 a month, i.e. ONLY THE BEST SURVIVE!
  - ★ With hunting tenants having soooo much choice, one thing is clear and very important. There is just too much competition, if you are thinking of letting your property, the condition/decoration will have to be of high standard, (laminated flooring would be a good tip!).
  - ★ Apart from poor condition, you may particularly struggle to find tenants if the property is above commercial property or in a high rise block.
  - ★ Landlords accepting tenants on housing benefit are achieving higher rent.
  - ★ Apart from gas safety certificate, all newly let properties must have an EPC certificate (Energy performance certificate).
- If you have any more questions/queries relating to letting your property or current letting market, please call us on 020 8889 7474

LUKA INJURY NOT SERIOUS

By Lee Husson

TOTTENHAM were handed a major boost ahead of last night's Champions League trip to Werder Bremen as Luka Modric was given the all-clear to travel with the squad, despite leaving the Hawthorns on Crutches at the weekend.

The 25-year-old limped-off in Saturday's 1-1 draw with West Bromwich Albion after suffering an injury in a challenge with defender Gonzalo Jara.

Spurs boss Harry Redknapp had feared Modric, who opened the scoring against the Baggies, would face a lengthy spell on the sidelines, but those fears were allayed on Sunday as X-rays on his left leg – which he broke last year – came back clear, although he remained a serious doubt to feature in the game.

Spurs dominated the first half of Saturday's match – with Rafael van der Vaart impressing on his debut – as Modric fired them into a deserved lead.

But they could not add to their one goal advantage as Chris Brunt levelled on the stroke of half-time, and West Brom could have snatched the win as Carlo Cudicini was forced to make two excellent stops before Gabriel Tamas blasted wide with only the keeper to beat in the closing stages.

Meanwhile van der Vaart, a shock deadline-day signing from Real Madrid earlier this month, revealed that he enjoyed his first taste of English football.

"It's hard in the Premier League. The speed of the game makes it difficult but I love it," he told the Daily Mirror.

"It's easy to settle in when it is such a good team, and drifting behind the striker is where I like to play."

Spurs boss Harry Redknapp added: "We saw enough to see his quality – he's a proper player."

'Boro maintain good form with three more points

HARINGEY BOROUGH were below their best but still managed to grind out victory over Langford on Saturday in this Spartan Premier Division clash.

Goals from in-form striker Jamie Brandon and Daniel Ailey gave the home side a 2-1 win.

Charlie Douse should have opened the scoring for the home side early, but somehow he managed to blaze over the bar from close range, before Langford started to gain the upper hand – looking dangerous from set-pieces – with two corners being headed just wide.

However, it was Borough who broke the deadlock in the 35th minute as a flowing move sliced the visitors open, with Harry Honesty crossing low for Brandon to tap home at the far post.

The lead only lasted ten minutes though as a desperate attempt to cut out a cross from Douse saw him put the ball into his own net.

The second half saw both sides evenly matched with chances few and far between, but it was Honesty who created what turned out to be the winning goal – cutting in from the left and squaring perfectly for Ailey to slot into the bottom corner of the net.

Langford still threatened from set-pieces, and it took an exceptional save from keeper Jamaine Edwards to see out the win for Borough as he flung himself to his right to palm away a long-range free-kick.
